Rightfully Hers

On May 10, the National Archives unveils a new major exhibit to mark the centennial anniversary of the 19th Amendment and its impact on our nation's history. Rightfully Hers: American Women and the Vote will be the cornerstone of our celebration of the historic amendment.

This new exhibit commemorates important anniversary by looking beyond suffrage parades and protests to the often overlooked story behind this landmark moment in American history. This fuller retelling of the struggle for women’s voting rights illustrates the dynamic involvement of American women across the spectrum of race, ethnicity and class to reveal what it really takes to win the vote for one half of the people.

In honor of the exhibit and in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the 19th amendment, we invite you to browse the wealth of records and information documenting the women's rights movement in the United States on our new Women’s Rights topic page.

Use this page to explore photographs, documents, audiovisual recordings, educational resources, articles, blog posts, lectures, and a timeline of events, all relating to women’s rights and history.

Want to dig deeper into these records? Help contribute as a citizen archivist! We have two new missions in honor of our exhibit opening. Help tag and transcribe records relating to women’s rights to help make them more searchable in our Catalog. Get started today!

Women's Rights Missions

Calling all Citizen Archivists! As we commemorate the 100th anniversary of women in the U.S. attaining the right to vote, we ask for your help tagging and transcribing a selection of records related to women's rights. All of these contributions help make the records of the National Archives more searchable in our Catalog.
