PREFACE

This report presents a summary of the DIA current analysis of Soviet nuclear weapons logistics operations. The major subject areas are Soviet nuclear weapons logistics organization, storage, transport, security, and training and operations. This report supercedes a report with the same title and short title number dated March 1986.

Questions and comments concerning this report can be addressed to the Defense Intelligence Agency (Attn: , Washington, DC 20340-6160. Requests for additional copies should be sent to DIA (Attn:).

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

A. ~~(S)~~ [redacted] The Soviets have assigned the control of their nuclear weapons logistics operations to the 12th Main Directorate of the Ministry of Defense (12th GUMO) and to the 6th Directorate of each of the major military services of the Soviet armed forces.

B. ~~(S)~~ [redacted] The Soviets have developed a large nuclear weapons infrastructure

[redacted] Most of the NWSS are located in the western USSR or Eastern Europe.

C. ~~(S)~~ [redacted] The Soviets use trains, aircraft and ships for long distance movement of nuclear weapons.

SECTION II
ORGANIZATION

A. ~~(S)~~ [redacted] The 12th Chief Directorate of the Ministry of Defense (12th GUMO) is the Soviet central level organization responsible for the Soviet nuclear weapons logistics program. In peacetime, the 12th GUMO controls [redacted] national stockpile sites (NSS) [redacted]

B. ~~(S)~~ [redacted] Within each major military service a Sixth Directorate probably controls all nuclear weapons logistics units and operations. [redacted]

[redacted] The 6th organizations are administratively subordinate to the 12th GUMO (Fig 1). [redacted]

F. (U) Storage Capacities of Soviet Bunkers

1. ~~S~~

E.O. 13526, section 3.3(b)(1)

2. ~~S~~ [redacted] A nuclear weapon contains high explosive material, fissile material, and electrical components. Like all weapons, it must function with certainty if used against the enemy, but otherwise must be safe to handle, transport, and store. Periodic inspections of the nuclear weapons and replacement of limited life components during storage are important. Weapons in storage must be readily accessible for this maintenance work. Accessibility is also necessary for the rapid extraction of nuclear weapons from the bunker for operational purposes and during emergencies. Thus, the basic parameters for storage of nuclear weapons are accessibility and mobility for the purposes of maintenance, generation, and safety.
