5. It is interesting, in light of what follows, that the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee did not levy an official request for information concerning LOGINOV and his KGB activities during the period 1967/1968. It is of interest because as of 1967/1968, [redacted] Senator James O. EASTLAND was very sympathetic to the South Africans - [redacted] - and that concurrently Senator EASTLAND, [redacted] actually was the senior senator responsible for business conducted by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee (SISS). Relative to potential SISS interest in the LOGINOV case, reference is made to the file [redacted] of Paul J. SCOTT, former syndicated columnist of the "Allen-Scott Report." This file contains a report of an interview of SCOTT on 13 April 1968 by an inspector of the Internal Revenue Service, U.S. Treasury Department. Among other matters, SCOTT stated that certain information was furnished SCOTT in South Africa in October 1967 by General "Van DEUBERGH" whom he described as head of South African Security.

E.O. 13526, section 3.3(b)(1)

"Mr. SCOTT stated he travelled to that country to give a series of talks, the gist of which was 'We are actually at war.' In addition he was desirous of having an opportunity to interview a Russian spy who was in South African custody. He named this individual as Yuri Nikolaevitch LOGINOP (sic). Mr. SCOTT stated that he was not permitted to interview LOGINOP but that he did receive extensive information from General Van DEUBERGH concerning this man. In substance, the General told him that LOGINOP was on his way to the United States to set up a spy system of great proportions in that country and other countries in the Western Hemisphere. Mr. SCOTT mentioned, incidentally, that General Van DEUBERGH told him that he had filled in the FBI concerning LOGINOP. Mr. SCOTT stated that the technique to be employed by LOGINOP and other members of the ring would be that of disrupting. He stated that the major objective of this spy system was to disrupt two seats of government so badly in 1968 to render them powerless, namely, Saigon and Washington. In order to bring about this condition, in addition to disrupting services, an effort would be centered on destroying units of production, for example, the Ford Motor Company and the IRS Data Center at Detroit, Michigan. Mr. SCOTT stated that the General told him that LOGINOP said he planned to set up a coalition of Negro, peace groups and other dissidents to achieve his objectives. LOGINOP was also reported to have said that the overall plan was to be a three-phase operation of violence, economic and political warfare."

6. It would be interesting to determine if any accounts similar to the above appeared in the press in late 1967 or early 1968 which should have prompted SISS interest in LOGINOV.
